Zadanie 1.

One:

We gave Cyprus cheap goals and we should be better than we are. The mistakes should have been limited – it was too easy for them.

Two:

However, Murray made no mistake in the 10th game, breaking the world number 30 with ease to take the first set. The second set was all one-way traffic, with Murray winning the first five games en route to a comfortable 6–1 success.

Three:

A second knockdown saw the Brit look to his corner in a way that suggested he was in serious trouble. Although he requested to go on, Ward, bleeding heavily from his nose and with a nasty swelling under his right eye, was withdrawn by his trainer before the start of the fifth round.

Four:

The former Eastbourne Eagle suffered rib damage and bruised kidneys in a crash at Ipswich on Thursday. He fell in the first heat of the 16-lap Classic, but hospital X-rays have revealed no significant harm to his back.

Five:

Disgraced sprinter Marion Jones has been handed a two-year ban and returned the five medals she won at the 2000 Sydney Olympic Games, days after admitting to the use of a prohibited substance.

Six:

Lebron says they will bounce back next year. He's right, they will, but they will need to get some better players in. A lot of the time he made the passes to guys that were wide open but they couldn't put it in the basket.

Zadanie 2.

Origami is the Japanese art of paperfolding. "Ori" is the Japanese word for folding and "kami" is the Japanese word for paper. That is how origami got its name. However, origami did not start in Japan. It began in China in the first or second century and then spread to Japan sometime during the sixth century.

For centuries there were no written directions for folding origami models. The directions were taught to each generation and then handed down to the next. In 1797, How to Fold 1000 Cranes was published. This book contained the first written set of origami instructions which told how to fold a crane. The crane was considered a sacred bird in Japan. It was a Japanese custom that if a person folded 1000 cranes, they would be granted one wish. Origami became a very popular form of art as shown by the well-known Japanese woodblock print that was made in 1819 entitled "A Magician Turns Sheets of Birds". This print shows birds being created from pieces of paper.

In 1845 another book, Window on Midwinter, was published which included a collection of approximately 150 origami models. This book introduced the model of the frog which is a very well known model even today. With the publication of both these books, the folding of origami became recreation in Japan.

Not only were the Japanese folding paper, but the Moors, who were from Africa, brought paperfolding with them to Spain when they invaded that country in the eighth century. The Moors used paperfolding to create geometric figures because their religion prohibited them from creating animal forms. From Spain it spread to South America. As trade routes were developed, the art of origami was introduced to Europe and later the United States.

Zadanie 3.

For ten joyful months the two young mothers loved and looked after their new babies. Life was good as they bonded with their tiny girls and were enthusiastic new parents.

So imagine their horror when they discovered there had been a catastrophic mix up at the hospital where the babies had been born just 18 minutes apart.

The little girls had been accidentally switched at birth – and each family had grown to love a baby that was not theirs.

Now the two sets of families have met and agreed to swap both babies back – and must endure the agony of parting with the child they had thought was their own.

Suspicious first arose when dark-haired, brown-eyed Libor Broza and Jaroslava Trojanova were presented with a blonde-haired blue-eyed daughter they called Nikola.

Libor, 29, suspected his 25-year-old girlfriend of having had an affair – and his mates suggested the same. Desperate to discover the truth, lorry driver Libor went behind his girlfriend's back and had a DNA test in secret. To his horror – and overwhelming anger – he discovered he was not Nikola's natural father.

But girlfriend Jaroslava convinced him she had NOT been unfaithful by taking a DNA test herself, only to discover she wasn't Nikola's mother either!

Libor says: "It was a total shock. I just cried for two hours and Jaroslava was in despair. It was just impossible to believe that this could happen".

A fortnight after receiving the DNA tests the couple, who live in the Czech Republic, were told by that their real daughter was living with Petra Cermakova and her husband Jan in a village 20 miles away. They had called the little girl Veronika, not knowing that the baby they thought of as their own was really Trojanova's child.

Libor says: "We have raised Nikola for the past 10 months. It's impossible to imagine her now living apart from us".

When the couples met for the first time last week, the physical resemblance between their babies and their mothers was shocking. Each agreed that they would all gradually spend more time together before swapping Nikola and Veronika.
